Average charge triples

Jump in street light fee angers residents

By ANNE HOUGHTELING

THE CAMPBELL City Council Monday voted to set up a special lighting district which will cost residents with street lighting an average of $12.50 a year. That assessment will be levied in addition to the existing lighting tax which amounts to an average of $5 a household.

The unanimous vote on setting up the district came after two hours of public comment overwhelmingly against the move. Vice Mayor Ralph Doetsch was absent from the June 23 council meeting.

"The people have to understand that the decision to approve the district is one we've made after careful consideration," Mayor Rusty Hammer told an audience of more than 100 overflowing the Council Chamber. The assessment district is fair, he said, "because it's not fair to make everyone pay through city taxes if they don't have lights."

"If we don't adopt it (the district), the only solution is to turn off some lights."

While Proposition 13 provisions make it impossible to raise the ad valorum tax that has financed city lighting, an assessment district is legal under the 1978 measure, said city counsel Joan Briody.

IN THE TWO years since Proposition 13 passed, the city has been strapped from a deficit in funds for its 1,790 street lights. With steep jumps in the price of energy, staff estimates, next year the deficit would reach $115,000.

Residents argued that the assessments would violate the spirit of Proposition 13 and are inequitably determined. Some also urged any deficit be made up out of Campbell's General Fund money, as they have been during the last two years.

John Neal, 235 W. Latimer Ave., presented the council with a petition against the district. He said 500 members of the West Campbell Homeowners had signed it in protest of the new assessment.

Neal told the council to go to the Public Utilities Commission "and object to the PG&E rates."

Lorelei Court resident Connie Howell charged the council with going against the spirit of Proposition 13. "I supported 13 . . . and in the spirit of 13, I think you're in violation."

THE COUNCIL should look at cutting other items in the budget and use the savings to finance city lighting, she said. Another option would be to cut down on street lights, Howell suggested.

Several residents claimed the assessment rates, based on the size of resident's property are unfairly determined. One property owner on West Latimer said a city mailing informed him he would have to pay $135.48 yearly for his two acres. However, street lights illuminate very little of that acreage, he said.

Other speakers said the assessment should be based on street frontage, not the total amount of property.

Council members agreed that in the future a method of assessing that takes into account street frontage could be examined. There are "some equities," Councilman Bill Podgorsek said. He added, though, that the alternatives to the district such as cutting lighting would jeopardize safety. Campbell Police Chief Donald Burr said he would be "greatly concerned about safety in the neighborhood if some street lights were left off.

IN RESPONSE to one resident's inquiries about measures the city is taking to conserve energy, Hammer said as street lights need replacing, energy-efficient sodium vapor lights are being substituted for conventional lighting.

Starting in December, the new lighting assessment will arrive along with residents' property tax bills twice a year, according to Briody.

The average $12.50 rate is based on what the Public Works Department considers a "typical" Campbell lot of 6,000 square feet. Owners of commercial property will pay one-fourth more than households because they derive extra security and advertising benefits from lighting, according to Public Works chief Joe Elliott.

The city staff calculates that next year Campbell could raise $75,000 for lighting from the existing ad valorum tax and possible supplements of state bailout money. But nearly $200,000 will be needed to keep the street lighting system at present levels, according to staff estimates.

IN OTHER council action Monday, the council voted to:

- Postpone discussion of rent control until the July 14 council meeting. Rent control subcommittee members Hammer and Podgorsek have yet to meet to form recommendations on possible rent control measures because the city attorney, on vacation, has not been present to lend counsel;
- Accepted a low bid of $12,228 from Green Valley Landscaping of San Jose for maintenance of landscaping at the civic center and Campbell Branch Library; and
- Accepted a low bid from Zipse Construction of $154,979 for improvements on the San Tomas Aquino Road curve. Work will probably start in three weeks and most likely be completed by this fall, according to the Public Works Department.

Fireworks fund is halfway to blast-off

JULY 4th is a little more than a week away now and the Campbell Chamber of Commerce is about halfway to its goal of raising $3,000 to pay for the aerial fireworks display.

The spectacular pyrotechnics attract a huge crowd at the annual July 4th celebration held at John D. Morgan Park. The aerial show gets underway at dusk.

Those who would like to contribute to the fireworks fund can drop a letter to the chamber at 328 E. Campbell Ave., CA 95008 or stop by on weekdays.

Cities want sewage capacity guarantees

By MIKE MYSLINSKI

Three sewer districts serving some 117,000 customers in Cupertino, Milpitas, Campbell, Los Gatos and other areas are taking the first step toward litigation that would secure reserve sewage capacity from the San Jose-Santa Clara Water Pollution Control Plant.

At issue is whether the plant can handle the sewage flow it says it can and whether San Jose and Santa Clara used up some of the capacity paid for by the three sewer districts.

A potential building moratorium or a rationing of sewer hookups for new construction projects was the impetus for the districts' latest move.

Legal staff for the sewer agencies operated by the city of Milpitas, Santa Clara County Sanitation District No. 4 and the Cupertino Sanitation District have drawn up a document that outlines exactly what the agencies expect from the treatment plant.

The boards of directors for the agencies were expected to endorse the "claim of breach of agreement" document at their respective meetings this week.

In general, the claim forces San Jose and Santa Clara, the controlling agents of the plant, to assure the three sewer districts they will get the capacity they paid for. It also asks the plant operators to agree in writing that, in the event of an overload at the plant, the priority for sewer hookups will be given to the sewer districts rather than the cities of Santa Clara and San Jose.

The claim also seeks written assurance from San Jose and Santa Clara that none of the costs for expanding the plant, located at 700 Los Esteros Rd. near Alviso, will be charged to the client districts.

Last fall the inability of the plant to handle the flow resulted in poisonous waste being discharged into the south end of the bay, killing marine life in the process.

"The plant was overloaded," said Harold Singer, a senior engineer with the San Francisco Regional Water Quality Control Board. He said two factors caused that accident: plant operators "not adequately monitoring the system" and the inability of the plant to treat the flow it should have been able to handle.

Singer said the quality control board will be considering action soon on recommendations concerning the future of the plant. The board will base its directives on findings in a study conducted by a San Francisco consulting firm, CH2M Hill.

The quality control board has already told the plant to make certain modifications — or risk being shut down during a possible spill that could happen during this summer's canning season.

It was the CH2M Hill report last fall that first indicated reserve capacities sold to the plant's clients were being used by the cities controlling the plant, San Jose and Santa Clara.

Last week the San Jose City Council adopted a series of policy statements backing expansion of the plant. Councilman Jerry Estruth estimates that the plant would reach capacity by 1982 if it were not expanded.

But Frank Belick, the plant's engineer-manager, says the facility can handle the projected flow during

Paramedics go into action

This Monday, June 30, the new $40,000 Campbell Paramedic Unit goes into service. It will be used to transport patients to the hospital on all "paramedic-level calls" for a flat rate of $100 (for transportation). Above, from left, are paramedic-firefighter Bob Brewer, firefighter Michael Johnson and paramedic-firefighter Lance Valencia. According to Battalion Chief Tony Pini, patients who don't require paramedics to accompany them to the hospital will be transported by private ambulance. Pini feels the new transport service will result in less duplication of emergency medical services. Right now both Fire Department and ambulance paramedics or attendants respond to the scene.

Tower selling defective records, county charges

TOWER RECORDS was charged Monday by the county district attorney with reselling records as new after they were returned by customers as defective.

Deputy District Attorney James Chang said he had received several complaints from customers who returned defective records and wound up buying the same records two or three times again after they had been resealed as if they were new.

Chang said it's permissible to resell the records but they must be marked as used.

One customer and, later an investigator, engraved their names on records they considered defective to see if they were resold, and they showed up resealed on the shelves two or three times, said Chang.

The district attorney is also charging Tower, which has stores throughout the Bay Area, including Campbell and Mountain View, with not allowing exchanges of warped records and with false advertising on sale prices.

Matt Koenig, manager of the Campbell Tower store, called the charges "totally false."

"I'm totally clean. I didn't do anything out of this store," he said. He added that record companies to whom he sends defective records may reseal the records themselves.

Russ Solomon, president of the Tower Records chain, said district attorney's charges are "spurious" and "inaccurate." He said Tower Records and every record store in the industry unconditionally guarantees its records.

HIS STORES and others do reseal records as new if they've been returned for other reasons than their being defective, he said, since a record played once or twice that doesn't have any defects isn't considered used.

"The whole industry does this," he said, comparing the practice to clothing stores' selling clothes that have been tried on before. "It's a foolish suit," he said.

Koenig added that his store uses a resealing machine for returned records that aren't defective, but Tower agreed a few weeks ago not to use the resealing machine until this case is decided.

Chang said he doesn't think it's legal to reseal records as new even if they aren't defective. Tower told him they only check records for visual defects, he said, and they didn't catch the engraved names. "The customer should know what he's getting," he said.

The district attorney's office is seeking $100,000 in civil penalties, but Chang said "huge sums of dough" in resealed records are involved.

He said other stores do the same thing, but he has not received any complaints about other stores.

Condo conversion law set for study July 16

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16 has been set for a joint study session between the Campbell City Council and Planning Commission on a proposed condominium conversion ordinance.

Campbell now has a moratorium on condominium conversions set to expire Aug. 13.

The proposed ordinance would require the city to preserve a "reasonable balance" in types and prices of housing and would set structural standards for condominiums.

The study session is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Campbell Senior Center at the Campbell Library, 70 N. Central Ave.

Preliminary budget OK'd

A $12 million preliminary city budget for next year was approved Monday night with little discussion by the City Council. A public hearing was held June 14 at which residents and community organizations gave their reaction to Campbell's proposed expenditures for 1980-81.

Next year's budget represents a 15.6 percent increase over last year's $10,365,090. It is a "status quo" budget with no provisions for new personnel, services or equipment.

The budget includes $527,000 to build a new fire station near The PruneYard shopping center.

The City Council will meet to adopt a final budget in August.

Pre-election reports lacking in PRESS

EDITOR:

YOUR PAPER has faithfully reported all the charges made in the recent election campaign by Rod Diridon that O'Keefe's electioneering was funded mostly by "Richardson and the gun lobby." Although Dan O'Keefe never designed to say so, most of the funding for the Diridon campaign came from the teachers' and civil service unions.

Between having our senator in Sacramento the captive of the gun lobby or the captive of the bureaucrats the voters made the better choice.

Somehow I feel that the Campbell PRESS should have brought this to our attention — before the election. Maybe the voters got their information from another source and decided to vote against bigger bureaucracy.

And too much bureaucracy was an issue, wasn't it? But I don't recall the Campbell PRESS saying this.

Sewage capacity

this canning season, which runs from mid-July to September. He said the plant took in about 129 million gallons a day (MGD) during last year's canning season.

This year's flow should remain about the same, Belick said. He added, however, that the plant would be "stressed" if it had to handle much over 130 MGD.

Given that certain immediate measures costing about $1.5 million are being taken at the plant, such as assuring there's enough oxygen and chlorine to treat the flow, Belick is confident that no moratorium will have to be called in the near future.

But Jack Fleming isn't so sure about that. He is managing engineer with the Cupertino Sanitary District, which has paid for 8.6 MGD at the plant but is only using 3.5.

He called the threat of a moratorium or a rationing of sewer hookups "very real."

"They (the plant operators) are just going to have to dig in and get this damn thing finished," Fleming said. The districts are concerned enough to be preparing for legal action to expedite improvements at the plant, said Fleming.

Even though there could be a problem with capacity down the line, the Cupertino district plans to continue issuing sewer permits at its present rate, Fleming said.

Milpitas has more room to grow than other parts of the valley and thus is in more need of sewer hookups, noted City Manager John Maltbie. He believes San Jose has been giving only "lip service" to the fears Milpitas and other cities have of a major sewer emergency in the near future.

Milpitas bought 8.5 MGD and is using 3.9. The city wants written assurance its reserve capacity will be there when needed, Maltbie said, and wants prompt action from San Jose.

"We have been put off and put off and put off," he said.

County Sanitation District No. 4 serves all of Campbell, Los Gatos, Monte Sereno, 60 percent of Saratoga and parts of San Jose and Santa Clara.

Steven Goodman, district manager and engineer, doubts a moratorium will be called and is confident that San Jose and Santa Clara are moving as fast as they can to expand the treatment plant.

He said the district bought 13.55 MGD from the plant, but is only using 9.9 MGD. Since the area served by the district is mostly builtout, the question of sewer hookups for new construction is not as pressing, Goodman said.

With a growth rate in the county of 10 percent, there's a good chance the treatment plant could reach capacity by 1982, said water control board engineer Singer.

But he said that the present growth rate is only about 3 percent.

Rainbow will open

AFTER MONTHS of controversy, the San Jose City Council narrowly approved the opening of Rainbow Drive onto Highway 9 near Cupertino.

The council voted four to three to turn down a request to delay the decision until the council converts to district representation in January. Then the district would have an elected representative, argued Councilman Al Garza.

The issue has been hotly debated in the neighborhood and in the Council Chamber. Last week both council candidates in the November runoff showed up at the hearing, but neither spoke.

MAYOR HAYES told the residents, "We've spent months and months on the decision."

Councilmen Larry Pegram, Al Garza and Jerry Estruth voted against the move.

The opening of Rainbow Drive has been controversial because residents are fearful that it will result in increased traffic in their neighborhood. On the other hand, other residents in another area of the same neighborhood have complained that Rainbow Drive is needed to alleviate traffic there.

The completion of Rainbow Drive is in the city's General Plan.

The compromise will make it impossible for travelers to cross Highway 9 from Rainbow Drive. Motorists will be forced to turn left or right at the intersection.

ANIMAL BITES NEED ATTENTION

All animal bites are potentially dangerous and need medical attention.

Animal bites include wounds inflicted by dogs and cats, as well as wild animals.

In addition to the injury which requires medical attention, an animal bite can lead to infection, tetanus, and rabies. Bites from wild animals, particularly skunks, foxes, raccoons, and bats, should always be evaluated by a physician.

Thoroughly scrub the wound with soap and water to flush out animal saliva. This should be done for at least five to 10 minutes. Then cover the wound with a dry, clean cloth or dressing.

Consult a physician immediately for further cleansing, repair, and possibly for tetanus and rabies immunization.

If possible, the animal should be caught or identified and reported to the local authorities for observation.

If the offending animal is killed, the carcass should be saved so that tests can be run to determine if the animal is rabid.

This is the fourth in a series of first aid articles presented through the cooperation of the Emergency Care Center of O'Connor Hospital at Campbell on 1650 Winchester Boulevard near Hamilton Avenue.

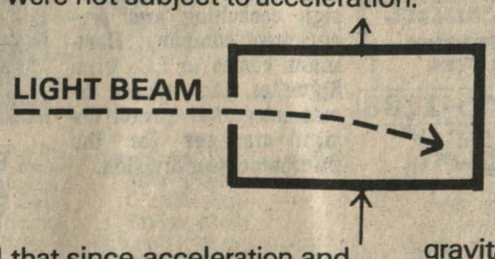
THE CHALLENGE: To admit that the following example shatters the very foundation of Einstein's 'General Relativity'-

The diagram below will be identified as the one used by Einstein wherein a beam of light enters through a small hole and hits the opposite wall lower than it would if the vehicle were not subject to acceleration.



By this example, Einstein deduced that since acceleration and gravity appear to be indistinguishable that gravity would also cause light to bend. However, the light would hit the opposite wall lower even if the motion of the vehicle were uniform. AND BY ENTERING INTO THE PROPERTIES OF UNIFORM MOTION WE HAVE NOW LOST ALL CHARACTERISTICS OF A GRAVITY CONDITION!

The apparent bending of light is strictly a characteristic of motion in the pure sense, and as such, it has no relevance to the behavior of light in a gravity environment.

In fact, such becomes extremely clear once we envision the vehicle in the diagram to be in the process of deacceleration rather than acceleration. In such a condition, the direction of weight recognition of all objects within the vehicle (thus all gravitational similarities) has now been reversed. However, the direction of the vehicle's motion remains the same, and the light beam would still hit the opposite wall of the vehicle lower than its point of entry. IT WOULD NOT BEND IN THE NEW DIRECTION OF WEIGHT RECOGNITION (THUS A GRAVITATIONAL ASSIMILATION) CAUSED BY THE DE-ACCELERATION. Thus it is proven that the apparent bending of light is oblivious to acceleration and is only a characteristic of motion in the pure sense - therefore the bending of light has no application to a gravity condition and Einstein and his 'General Relativity' has been wrong from the very beginning.

I have no doubt that if Einstein were alive today and viewing this material, he would have the integrity to admit his errors. So how about it physicists? Doesn't light bend around the sun from distant stars because of lensing effect, and not because of gravity?

"It would be a great book" Paul Schommer says of his experiences during his two decades on the Campbell police force. Schommer, selected as Campbell's Officer of the Year in 1977, retires June 30. His retirement luncheon will be held Thursday.

Paul Schommer retires

Campbell's sixth police officer turns in badge

By ANNE HOUGHTELING

WHEN Agent Paul Schommer retires from the Campbell Police Department June 30, badge number six will retire along with him.

The department has granted that honor to Schommer as the first Campbell policeman (besides those retiring for medical reasons) to have served long enough to earn a full pension.

The department was set up in 1952 when Campbell was incorporated and Schommer, 50, came aboard in 1959. A native of New Jersey, he came west to get his high school diploma from Campbell High School in the early 1950s after his family settled here. Before joining the department, he served on the U.S. Border Patrol in Southern California.

He was the sixth police officer to join the tiny Campbell Police Department of the late 1950s.

AT THAT time, "I worked all by myself," Schommer recalls. "But, then, there were only 5,000 people in Campbell, lots of orchards and I knew everyone." The force was so small, he says, that a traffic accident that injured four officers and smashed up two patrol cars nearly put the Campbell Police Department out of commission.

"It wiped out the entire fleet of two cars and we had to borrow county cars," he says.

Sitting beside Schommer in their house off Blossom Hill Road in San Jose, Faye, his wife, mentions that it's been suggested her husband write a book about his career.

"It would be a great book," says Schommer with a grin.

He eagerly shares the dramatic and funny experiences that have highlighted his career.

When he was a rookie with just a couple months on the force, Schommer rescued a 51-year-old man from a burning house. Schommer arrived before the fire truck.

"ME, LIKE a dummy, broke down the door and walked right in," he recounts. "The heat just hit me and I started out. Just when I was about out, I saw him lying there."

Schommer dragged the man out. For his heroism, he was awarded the National Red Cross life-saving certificate.

The fire victim, who suffered burns over half of his body, raised dogs. "When he got out of the hospital, he called me and said he'd offer me one of his Dachshunds. I said 'no thanks.' I haven't heard from him since."

The following year, Schommer, then single, was labelled "the bachelor midwife" for another act of bravery. Again, he was on the scene of an emergency before anyone else.

A YOUNG woman living on Foote Avenue had summoned the ambulance and picking up the call, Schommer rushed over. When he arrived, the baby was on its way.

"I had no training in delivery," he remembers. "When I saw the baby's head coming out, I just said, 'Oh, Jesus!'

"I told her: You push and I'll pull." Schommer also remembers asking for boiling water. He didn't know what it should be used for: "I just saw that in a movie."

When the ambulance pulled up, the baby was lying safely on the mother's stomach. A nurse at the hospital later praised him for doing such an excellent job, he says proudly.

He saw the mother a few years later but has yet to meet the daughter he delivered.

Once Schommer issued a ticket that caused quite a stir. District Attorney Louis Bergna and his wife stopped their car in front of a road block. Before Schommer could wave them through, he discovered the D.A.'s driver's license had expired. He was ticketed.

When Schommer got back to the police headquarters, "the chief got me in and chewed me up and down," he says. "Every once in a while, I still kid the D.A. about it."

Schommer has taken his work home with him on occasion. Once, when he and his family lived on Virginia Avenue in Campbell, a couple of teenagers drove their car into a telephone pole and walked away from the scene.

SCHOMMER, still in pajamas, grabbed his badge, jumped into his own car and started up the street in pursuit.

"I saw the kids and asked them if they wanted a ride. They said sure. I asked them how they were doing and they said fine. 'You're not doing so good now,' I said as I showed them my badge."

Other light-hearted incidents include the time he won a gag gift from fellow officers, one manacle from a set of handcuffs. It honored the time Schommer was struggling with an uncooperative prisoner and ended up clamping both handcuffs on only one of the prisoner's wrists.

Then there was the time Schommer stopped two youths suspected of lifting hubcaps. Schommer later discovered the hubcaps were from his own car. . .

"The first half of my career was enjoyable," he says. "I knew everyone in town and it wasn't as violent. The last five years — it hasn't been as much fun any more.

"WE USED to be respected. Now, 13-year-olds ride by on their bikes and make nasty remarks."

Now Schommer's plans are to manage rental property. He also plans to go to Hawaii, where he and a partner own condominiums, with Faye and their daughters, Amber, 18 and Paula, 13.

"I'll miss the chief," Schommer says. "And the captains, all the guys who I've been with 10, 15 years."

Whatever happens, he says it's unlikely he'll lose touch. "Probably after I'm retired two or three months, I'll go back and drive around (in a patrol car) a bit," he says.

THE CAMPBELL Police Department is sponsoring a retirement luncheon for Agent Paul Schommer June 26 at noon at El Charro Restaurant, 2169 S. Newsbriefs

Campbell construction slows

New construction in Campbell during May declined from the same period a year ago, according to figures from the Building Department. Building official Wally Byron says the decline did not reflect the nationwide construction slump but only was indicative of month-to-month fluxuation in building. In May 1979 the department issued 20 permits for single-family dwellings. Last month 14 permits were issued.

No food stamp increase next month

The food stamp benefit increase usually granted in July will not be given this year, according to U.S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman. Instead of the previous policy of adjusting benefits in January and July, now the USDA will adjust benefits for cost-of-living increases only in January. The change, proposed by the Carter administration was approved by the Congress last month as a budget-tightening measure, Foreman said.

The St. Frances Cabrini Parish in Cambrian Park is celebrating its 25th anniversary Sunday, June 29. The celebration will begin with a high mass concelebrated by Archbishop John R. Quinn and continue with a picnic on the parish grounds. Parishioners and their friends are encouraged to bring lunch, and the church will provide refreshments and barbecue fires. St. Frances is at 15333 Woodard Rd., San Jose (377-3090).

First United Methodist holds classes

Classes for adults and young people will be offered this summer through the First United Methodist Church, 1675 Winchester Blvd. Classes range from "Bonehead Bible" ("anyone with Bible knowledge will be thrown out," the class brochure warns) to arts and crafts offerings. Classes are free, though in some there will be a charge for materials. For further information, contact the church office at 378-2372.

SCIENCE TEACHER Richard L. Kuehnis gets together with his billboard at the corner of Payne and Winchester avenues. The billboard honors Kuehnis' completion of a goal that took five years: earning a master's degree in instructional technology while teaching biology and heading Campbell High School's Science Department. For that feat, plus for being voted "Teacher of the Year" for three years in a row, Kuehnis' brother Jim and sister April Pursley decided a more visible form of recognition was needed. Eller Outdoor Advertising gave them a discount rate as part of its public service program. "We are very proud of our brother," said Jim Kuehnis. Kuehnis' reaction: "I was shocked, amazed." With Campbell High closing, Kuehnis will teach and head the Science Department at Blackford High School next year.

Burton is back as Viking coach

By DICK SPARRER
Sports Editor

THERE AREN'T MANY similarities between the basketball program at West Valley College now and that program which began when the school opened back in 1964.

The Vikings were a member of the tiny Coast Conference back in the 1964-65 season and played in the small, antiquated confines of the Campbell high school gym.

Now the Vikings are a member of the rugged Golden Gate Conference playing their home games in a beautiful gym at their new Saratoga campus.

A lot has changed on the basketball scene at West Valley in the last 16 years, but one thing hasn't changed — Bob Burton is still a Viking.

That's right, Bob Burton, the star of that first West Valley College basketball team back in 1964-65, is a Viking again — certainly not as a player, but as the Vike's new head coach.

Burton, an all-conference guard on that all-freshman team at West Valley that first year, will succeed Carl White as the Viking boss, a parttime instructor at West Valley who had taken over the reins from El Brown.

"I'm real excited about the opportunity to work out there," said Burton soon after learning of his appointment as the new Viking mentor. "I think it's a class operation."

BURTON COMES to West Valley after many succesful years as the head basketball coach at Willow Glen high school, where he led eight teams to a 143-52 record and two Santa Teresa Athletic League championships in varsity play.

"He's had an exceptional coaching record, but in addition he's enthusiastic and he's a hustler — a real go-getter," said West Valley Athletic Director Jim Root of Burton. "It was a very difficult decision because of the quality people we had apply, but we feel we made a good selection."

"He's been to more of our games than many of the coaches in our district," added Root. "He's very enthusiastic and ambitious."

"I've lived in this area all my life, and ever since I was in high school I've been following junior college basketball," admitted Burton. "It's a great brand of basketball, especially in the Golden Gate Conference. They have so many great leapers and jumpers."

Burton was an all-league and all-Central Coast Section basketball player as a prepster at Campbell high school in the early 1960's for coach Bert Robinson and then moved on to play one season at West Valley.

On that 1964-65 Viking Squad, Burton averaged 26 points a game to help the Vikings to a second place finish in the Coast Conference.

"IT WAS THE best I ever played," admitted Burton, who hit 41 points in a single game that season and was an all-conference selection.

Burton moved to on Brigham Young University the next year before transferring to Fresno State.

He got his coaching start as a graduate assistant while working on his Masters at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and then moved on to Leigh High school to become the coach of the C squad and assist with the varsity.

Both teams won titles at Leigh and a year later he was off to Westmont where he coached the frosh-soph team to a second place finish.

In 1972 he took over at Willow Glen and had great success, winning six titles, two of them on the varsity level.

His most recent team finished second in league play before winning the STAL Shaughnessy tournament. His Rams went on to finish third in the CCS.

OVERALL, BURTON clubs have posted a 205-69 record for a 74.8 winning percentage.

Burton hopes to carry those winning ways over to West Valley, but he'll have his work cut out for him with just two returning lettermen and a late start for recruitment.

"Realistically, it's very late," admitted Root. "A lot of kids are already committed. If we could have wrapped this up by March 1st it would have been a lot different. It could be tough for him the first year."

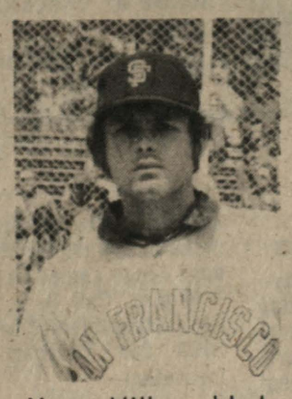
"But our Board didn't thaw out the job freeze until May," he added, "and we had to go through the right procedures to give everyone a fair chance."

But an optimistic Burton said, "I want to get the top athletes in the district to come to West Valley — I'm really interested in getting the local players. I think the school has so much to offer."

"I'm going to try to bring an exciting brand of basketball to West Valley — a fast tempo game," said Burton, whose Ram teams have been known for their pressing defenses and running offenses.

Burton is leaving a very good basketball team at Willow Glen — a team that should contend for the Santa Teresa Athletic League crown in 1980-81. How could he leave?

"That was very difficult," admitted Burton. "But this is the future, and it's an incredible challenge!"



Marc Hill, sold to Seattle.

THEY TRADED Orlando Cepeda to get Ray Sadecki; they traded Gaylord Perry, and tossed in a Frank Duffy, to get Sam McDowell, only after trading George Foster to get Duffy and Vern Geishert, who never played an inning for San Francisco; and they traded Steve Stone and Ken Henderson to get Tom Bradley.

Then, of course, those players they couldn't trade away for lesser talent, they simply sold. Dave Kingman, Juan Marichal, Von Joshua, Tim Foli and many others were just sold. And most recently, add the names Ed Halicki and Marc Hill to that list!

The two players cleared National League waivers, so the Giants sold them to American League clubs last Friday just for the $20,000 waiver price. Incredible!

The Giants will never be able to convince me that a Halicki-Hill package wouldn't have been enough to trade for a shortstop better than Johnny LeMaster.

The Giants, two years ago, could have dealt Halicki to Philadelphia for Jerry Morrison and Jerry Martin. But the Giants have their untouchables.

They could have picked up Bruce Sutter from Chicago, but they wouldn't give up Larry Herndon, an outfielder the Giants are platooning this season.

They could have picked up John Stearns from the Mets, but they wouldn't give up Bob Knepper — he too was untouchable.

Teams have wanted Randy Moffitt and Gary Lavelle, but they've been untouchable too — except when they take the mound to pitch!

HOW CAN any team continue to be so inept at wheeling and dealing in the big league baseball market? And how can we go along supporting such a team?

It's time for the Giants to clean house. Get rid of Dave Bristol and bring on a manager who's a motivator.

Get rid of those players who don't produce, but continue to tell us how good they are — like John "Down For The Count" Montefusco. Fighting with a manager after trying to tell him how to do his job should be good for a ticket to the American League.

Halicki, Hill, Montefusco, Knepper, Herndon, Rennie Stennett, Lavelle, Moffitt and Jim Wohlford could all go and the Giants wouldn't suffer too much. And they could have formed a nice package with some combination of those players to get some talent back in San Francisco.

But don't count on the Giants to make a sparkling deal and pick up a player who will get them right into the pennant race in the NL West.

This is the same team that gave up Pete Falcone to get Ken Reitz, then gave up Reitz to get Lynn McGlothen, then gave up McGlothen to get Heity Cruz, then gave up Cruz to get Pedro Borbon, then released Borbon!

'Pay later' scheme draws Diablos fans

By DAVID JACOB

THERE WAS a magic surrounding the San Jose Diablos last week that emanated from the stands. Normally empty seats became filled with enthusiasm.

It could have had something to do with the "play now, pay later" concept, devised by Tucson Sky general manager Bob Garrett to save the Diablos and thus the International Vollyball Association.

Spectators were able to sample the product before they dipped into their wallets.

Garrett said it's "one way to get the fans interested in professional volleyball."

Well, some 2,500 people demonstrated thrills and enjoyment over the promotional concept as well as the fast-paced excitement of the game.

As the doors opened at the San Jose Civic Auditorium, the prospective supporters were greeted by Joe Degier in a rubber Richard Nixon mask, another product from the mind of Garrett, to enhance the fun and entertainment atmosphere.

Many people were equipped with their Diablos t-shirts and various noise paraphernalia, like one man who arrived with a tom-tom drum to lead in some cheers.

Among the crowd were those diehard Diablo fanatics who want their San Jose franchise to remain, but mostly first-timers, who liked the price, came to pacify their curiosities.

AND BY the time the first game began many people, like Pat DePonzi, 57, of San Jose, were pleased with what they saw and heard.

"I enjoy it very much, both teams are really talented," exclaimed DePonzi.

It's hard not to have fun when the energy of a full house shouts, stomps and cheers while watching their home team play with all heart.

The sounds of "Dueling Banjos," and other tunes that stir emotions, were played over the public address system during pregame, halftime and time outs.

But even the spectators participated when they sang the National Anthem with harmonious beauty that would have brought tears of joy to the eyes of Robert Merrill.

All these activities brought the crowd together to enjoy a professional sporting evening without having to drive to Oakland or San Francisco.

And the Diablos came through by winning game one, against the Santa Barbara Spikers, 12-9, behind the play of setter Stan Gosciniak.

According to team owners, the Diablos' problem is from bad promotion. There has to be better media and widespread publicity.

GARRETT insists that the competition from other sports is not keeping people away. It's a matter of showing the people the product so they will want to come watch.

Many people who admitted they were first time spectators for the Diablos said they came "because it was free."

However, they also said they would come again, and that's the name of the game.

"It's not like volleyball at the beach," exclaimed one enthusiastic first-timer. "I like it."

The compact Civic Auditorium allowed the fans to be right on top of the action.

"There's not a bad seat in the place," explained volunteer usher Don Porter.

Porter said the ushers are from the Diablo Industrial League and want the IVA in San Jose. Many people did too as the evening continued.

Game two was again a Diablo victory, 12-8, with aggressive attacking and kills by IVA veteran Jeff Reddan, and the number one draft choice from San Diego State, Mike Dodd.

A second interest of IVA owners and Garrett is to find someone who will take over the franchise.

The team's owners called it quits after 12 games this season because they thought the league, and pro volleyball, would never become viable.

Garrett obviously disagrees and, after building the Tucson Sky to a profitable season with his unique promotional endeavors, hopes his play-and-pay game will bring in the Bay Area crowds.

At the night's end it appeared that the Diablos gained some future fans. People did pay, about $3,000 worth, and promised to return.

Future ideas like "Sunburn Night," granting free admission to those who are thoroughly beached-out, can only add to the Diablo fun.

By the way, the Diablos beat the Spikers by taking game three, 12-10. Although without the magic of the crowd, it's only history.

'It's really jumping' in the maternity wards

Is there a baby boom in Santa Clara Valley?

By ROBERT HOF and RON REGALIA

BUSINESS is booming in the obstetrics wards, say officials of many area hospitals.

Maternity and children's shop owners report their sales are up, and some have opened new stores recently.

And almost everyone seems to think they've seen more pregnant women around lately.

Some call it a boom, some dub it a "swell" and others insist it's only a tremor, but nearly everybody agrees: More Valley women are having babies these days.

'All I can say is that it seems we have been delivering more babies'

"There hasn't been a slowdown since last November," exclaims Good Samaritan Hospital birth recorder Cindy Williams. "It's really been jumping."

For the last three or four months, their maternity wards have been so full that they've had to put patients in other wards, she says. Everyone at the hospital is talking about the boom, she reports.

One of those is Good Sam's director of obstetrical services, Fred Schlichting M.D., though he says boom isn't quite the word.

"I think there is a minor tremor out there someplace, not a full volcano erupting. The trend is not overwhelming, but definite." And it looks like it'll go on for at least another year, he added.

ALEXIAN BROTHERS Hospital reports a two-thirds increase in the past three years, though its figures show the rate of growth slowing down.

"When you compare all three years, we still have a very dramatic increase. We've been very busy this quarter, more so than in the past," says hospital spokeswoman Lily Badagliacca.

Alexian's chairman of obstetrics and gynecology, Oakland Wong, says the increase qualifies as a boom, at least in the East Side location of his hospital.

And O'Connor Hospital reports large increases since at least 1977.

But hospitals aren't the only ones to notice the infant increase.

Trilma Leeman, owner of Mackie's the Children's Store in Willow Glen, says more babies are being born now than three or four years ago.

"We have been selling more baby items in the past year than before."

LEROY EIKANAS, general manager of McMullin's for Children on Bascom Avenue, reports "improvement in the infant part of our business."

Tumbleweed Kid's Fashions on Capitol Avenue has had some increase in sales, and salesperson Debbie Kautz says she's seen more than usual pregnant women coming into the store.

And several stores have opened new branches in the past year.

Figures compiled by county Health Department seem to back up gut feelings that there's some sort of boom.

The county birth rate hit the lowest point in more than a decade in 1973 and has been rising fairly steadily since then, from 14.2 children born per thousand population to 15.27 in 1978.

Figures aren't in for '79 yet, but Karen Quezada of the county Health Departments Statistics section says she thinks it will hit 15.7 — the biggest rate of increase in three years.

Though Quezada thinks it's a boom, Lou Detwiler, senior public health analyst with the county, thinks it's too soon to tell if it will come anywhere near the baby boom of the 1950s.

LEST GRANDPARENTS start rejoicing too soon, a number of hospital officials say that if there's a boom, they haven't heard it.

Kaiser Hospital has actually seen a decrease some months during the last year and a half.

Dr. Vern Walker, chief of obstetrics and gynecology at San Jose Hospital, calls the evidence "pretty inconclusive."

A crowd in the maternity ward

O'Connor Hospital reports a big jump in the number of babies they've delivered in the last two years. Hospital officials here in O'Connor's maternity ward and in other hospitals are cautious about identifying the increase as a baby boom like that in the '50s, but most say the recent rise in births is undeniable. Reasons range from delayed pregnancies of '50s baby boom parents to increasing unpopularity of birth control. Photo by Amy Huntoon.

Olga Ride the tide, Leo

June 28 through July 4

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Full Moon in Capricorn shines on tempting escape route, Ari, but do use caution and diplomacy, Guard words, wallet and watch during midweek. Moon enters your sign on last day and high cycle begins with a bang.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Full Moon in compatible Capricorn (the 28th) lights way for personal journey. Writing, publishing, advertising favored. Capricorn's Saturn makes your Venus less flighty. Last day for ladyfingers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Full Moon in Capicorn highlights demands and details. Buckle down, Gem, and burden is lifted. As busy week marches to a half you finally catch up with passing parade. Last day you're a real sparkler.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle low. Piddling problems loom large. Full Moon in Capricorn (your opposite) is time to cool your temper, heels and jets. However, when Moon swims into compatible Pisces (the 1st) the worm turns. Last day for nibbles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): After sluggish start, Moon sinks into pensive Pisces (the 1st) and low cycle begins. You are Fire and Pisces is Water and the two don't mix. Turn down your thermostat, Leo, and ride the tide. Last day you come out of the shadows and week ends with a flair.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Full Moon in Capricorn can prove to be a frustrating force for you, Virgo, so relax and let the currents carry you where they will. Low cycle begins (the 2nd) and week ends not with a firecracker — but a fizzle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): "Gimme, gimme, gimme," is all you seem to hear this week. What's more, your wallet is flat. And flathead who tries flattery should be flattened, Libra. Week ends on note of F for flatulence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Full Moon in Capricorn shines on dealings with relatives, short journeys, creative ideas

Get cash back on rust bucket

By SLIM INGHAM

Send all mail for this column to Consumers United, P.O.Box 311, Palo Alto 94302 or call 494-1858 for consumer advice.

Our 1976 Volare (Chrysler product) has rusted through both front fenders in an area close to the windshield. We bought the car in New Jersey and moved to California in late 1978. It hasn't been a good car and when an appraiser looked at it, he called it a "rust bucket" and told us he "wouldn't have one on the lot as a gift."

Needless to say, its trade in value is disgustingly low. The appraiser actually poked his finger through the rusted sheet metal. If they any chance of having the factory repair the car at low or no cost to use so we can at least get more than $750 for it?

Maryanne Ziefeld
Palo Alto

The F.T.C. has negotiated a settlement program with Chrysler to replace these components with new at no charge to the consumer. You may not receive a recall notice so start your collection efforts with a letter to the zone representative.

If you are turned down (very possible), contact Consumers United for aid in collecting through the use of the small claims court.

For those that have already had the work done, sometimes at a cost approaching $600, reimbursement is available. This problem affects the 1976 and '77 Aspens and Volares and primarily those cars distributed in the eastern states where salt is used to clear snow from the roads. The estimate is that 200,000 of these cars are affected.

Our neighbors are considering the purchase of a motor home. The deal offered them is 10% down and 10 year financing. What are the problems with such a contract or financing, and is it a wise way to buy?

Claus Bol
Cupertino

At today's interest rates they could easily be paying well over twice the contract price for the vehicle. This, coupled with the super high cost per mile of operation should disillusion any potential buyer. Bring out the calculator and see for yourself. An all-factors assessment of cost per mile will be close to $1.00. Ouch!

We've seen the ads for writers, photographers and artists schools. Are these "through the mail" courses any good? They don't seem all that expensive and I would like to expand my skills. Both my husband and I would enroll — we want to gain some extra income.

Lianne Sphone,
San Jose

These three fields are crowded to bursting. Should you wish supplemental education in most any trade or profession, try the evening courses offered at San Jose State, De Anza, Foothill, etc. Much better quality and often a lower price.

and money. You loosen up, let down, shove off and let fly. Week ends on key of C for candle. Roman, of course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Full Moon in Capricorn emphasizes cash flow which has turned into a mere trickle. Time ideal to trim budget, sails and figure. Busy week ends on key of F for fun, flag and fireworks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Cycle high. Full Moon in your sign promises love, romance, growth and security. Cupid taps you on the shoulder this week, Cap, and just this once you might give the little fellow a break.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): When Full Moon leaves Capricorn and enters your sign (the 29th) your high cycle begins. Dreams can come true. This is time to run barefoot in the park, on the beach, across your waterbed. Whatever works for you. Week ends with a giggle.

PISCES (Feb 19 - Mar. 20): Full Moon has you all discombobulated. You're not sure whether to fish, fight or fly-the-coop. But when Moon enters your sign (the 1st) 4-day high cycle begins. Energy returns, judgment is keen and your sex appeal is downright shameless!

Baby boom

"People are saying there is some kind of boom, but it doesn't seem to be borne out by statistics."

"It's hard to substantiate — a matter of feeling," he says. "All I can say is that it seems we have been delivering more babies," though some months have decreased.

But the big months are coming up, and July through September should be "dandies," he says.

IF THERE is a baby boom, there seem to be as many reasons as there are new children.

Good Sam's Schlichting thinks the baby boom children of the '50s who put off having kids because of careers or financial considerations are reaching 30 and finally deciding to start a family. Other officials think that may not yet be so big a factor, however.

Dr. Walker of San Jose Hospital said "people are giving up birth control" because they're getting disgusted with it or because they feel it's "more wholesome to go back to nature."

He admits that his is "probably the word's worst time to bring a new mouth into the world" with the recession and tight money situation.

But he points out that the recession may have a deceptive effect: "People are going to fewer movies, etc., and staying home and doing what comes naturally."

Dr. Wong of Alexian Brothers says the boom at his hospital may be partly due to "a lot of young families moving into our area (the East Side)." That includes a lot of Vietnamese immigrants having babies, he says.

You can wine and dine on a budget

KEEPING RESTAURANT PRICES DOWN ISN'T AN EASY JOB!

Pity the poor restaurateur who has to compete with the prices of home cooking and rows of fast food places all over the Peninsula . . . as the price of food keeps going up, the restaurateur attempts to keep his prices level. It isn't easy.

How we hate to return to our favorite bistro only to find that the special Beef Bourguignonne that we usually order has gone up in price, or the price of a cup of coffee is now 30 cents or more. That's a real bummer, for sure.

Many restaurants have tried to compensate by buying their products in large quantities, thus enabling them to keep their prices steady . . . one such restaurant that serves really outstanding food for as little as $5 a dinner is SIRLOIN & BREW UNLIMITED. Here is a dinnerhouse designed for comfort and convenience that will treat you "special" at a "not-so-special" price.

I recently dined at the Saratoga SIRLOIN & BREW restaurant — enjoyed the nautical decor and the fine hospitality of all the crew. They keep your wine glass filled (honestly, gang) and it's complimentary, too. You can eat all the salad you want and drink all the wine, beer, sangria or cola you can manage at one sitting and everybody I saw went away with a smile on their face. There seemed to be a warm quality, a mood, a spirit of friendship and generosity at this restaurant.

The nautical decor is also enjoyed at the new Mt. View SIRLOIN & BREW UNLIMITED, and they also carry out the same practice of serving good food at low prices.

As owner Ed Driscoll states, "The government not only has the bad habit of living beyond its income, but also ours. So if you have about $5 just to splurge on yourself, you can have a great wine-and-dine-in-candlelight experience at SIRLOIN & BREW UNLIMITED."

So, here's one way to beat the cost of living and still go out for an evening of fun and enjoyment. You just might watch for other specials that restaurants are serving — everyone wants to keep their customers happy without going into the "red" — but do take pity on the poor restaurateur if he does have to raise his prices once in awhile — everything's going up.

IN ONE EAR: A true Escoffier is Marvin Greenwald of Sirloin & Brew Unlimited. He holds a wine diploma from the Wine Institute on behalf of the Wine Advisory Board and also can boast of a Certificate of Merit — Le Comite National des Vins de France — a deserved honor . . . Mr. P's was the scene of a dining affair by KXRX's talk show hostess Diane Raymond, and friends . . . Chez Yvonne has now reopened with new owners, but using the same format and Continental cuisine. This is the prettiest restaurant — just like stepping into Paree' . . . : In answer to may inquiries, here's a scoop: Mary Lou & Paul will be sailing with Delta Lines indefinitely, entertaining in their own inimitable way. They start out on the Maria — this cruise may be booked entirely or for only a week or so to fit your time-frame. Think I'll Fly Down to Rio and sail back. (Well, I can dream, can't I??) Call (415) 777-8300 for more details . . . I dined last Saturday night at the Iron Gate Restaurant in Belmont. The abalone was superb and Al Malatesta's friendly hospitality hasn't changed a bit ... Rainbow Bridge was playing great danceable music at The Floodlite, Atherton . . . The Second Floor, Los Gatos, provides a balcony on which to dine and observe the tennis games below . . . Fadeout: 27 Rustler Steak Houses just went out of business — a sad tail. . .

HOT OFF THE GRIDDLE: The Scupper has Landed in Sunnyvale, and what a landing it was! The new Rusty Scupper is simply fantastic! The decor is outstanding (the architect should be commended for sure) and the Executive Chef Coach Sherlock deserves an award for serving the kind of food that keeps a customer smiling from the first course to dessert. Tip: Try the Steak and Crab Leg — outstanding! Located off Lawrence Expressway & Bayshore. A must visit!

DRIVE OR FLY TO NEVADA!

Whether you're into pink panthers or private eyes, you'll love Sahara Reno's new Gilded Cage Cabaret Show, "Pin-ups at the Movies." The popular Jimmy Dean-Jerry Jackson Production delighted crowds in Las Vegas with its singing, dancing, comedy and the lovely pin-ups chorus line. Opens June 25 with two shows nightly except three on Monday nights . . . Songstress Helen Reddy brings her special style of singing to Sahara Tahoe June 24-30 — so hurry up and reserve now. Darling Rich Little opens July 1 — I'm a big fan of his . . . Harold's Club will have a huge parking garage directly across the street — will hold 878 cars — so keep this in mind when visiting Reno . . . John Ascuaga's Nugget will feature 2 big favorites June 23-July 2. — Bert Convy and that irresistible Foster Brookes. Here's one show I'm not going to miss . . . the foot-stomping pulsating all-African musical Ipi-Tombi is now at the Opera House at Sahara Reno — tickets in advance, please.

Indian dancers set for festival

More than 350 tribes have been invited to participate in the Bay Area United Tribes Powwow — said to be probably the biggest Indian gathering ever to take place in Northern California in recent years.

The massive all-day powwow happens Saturday, July 5, as part of the fifth annual San Jose's Great American Arts Festival, presented by Tapestry In Talent Inc.

"A powwow is a social gathering where Indians celebrate their lives and their culture," said Hilda Burgee, spokesperson for the Indian Center of San Jose and the organizer of the powwow.

Burgee expects more than 1,000 Indians from throughout California and Nevada to participate.

"There will be dancers and drummers and singers from all the tribes," she said. "And they'll be fully costumed in the traditional dress of their people."

The Grand Entry begins at 1 Saturday afternoon, with all the dancers entering San Jose's Civic Auditorium to the beat of their various tribal drums. Each group of dancers will sing the flag song of their tribe.

Dancing — both traditional men and women's dancing, and fancy dancing — will fill the afternoon. Tribal dancers — fully costumed — range from children to senior citizens.

"Dancing is in their blood," said Burgee, a Minnecoujou Sioux, originally from the Cheyenne reservation in South Dakota. "If you come to the powwow you'll probably see one little child about a year and a half old, dancing. His father taught him, and now he dances, and his pampers peak out of his pants and everything. He's so cute."

In addition to dancing and drumming, the powwow will include the traditional "giveaway" in which participants give gifts to each other.

Following the "giveaway" is the Friendship. County Supervisor Rod Diridon and Iola Williams have both said they will take part in the Friendship Dance.

The host drum for this event is the 4-Winds Drum, with lead singers Kelly Standing Elk (Rosebud Sioux) and Chuck Snow (Arikara-Hidasta). Master of Ceremonies for the day will be Dr. Bernard Hoehner (Hunkpapa Sioux).

"We want to educate the public and get away from the Hollywood stereotype," Burgee explained. "We want the public to see the pride that's within our hearts, and to know that Indians are people just like they are."

In addition to the songs and dances of the powwow, there will be a full array of Indian arts and crafts, as well as traditional Indian food served from booths located outside the Civic Auditorium.

Other Great American Arts Festival events include 13 stages with continuous musical entertainment. KEEN radio is co-sponsoring the country stage; KPEN radio, the Jazz stage; KLIV radio, the rock stage; KLOK radio, a stage of contemporary hit music and oldies. There will be big band music and classical music.

Craftspeople, artists and cooks will be setting up booths throughout the festival grounds.

The festival, now in its fifth year, stresses the cultural arts. This year there will be a photography gallery, a touching gallery filled with art for the finger tips, and a designers' gallery with exhibits from the field of graphic, industrial, architectural, landscape and interior design arts.

An animation festival will introduce people to the mysteries of animated film. Those attending can enjoy films, film clips and commercials, as well as displays showing how animated films are produced.

Tapestry In Talent Inc. presents San Jose's Great American Arts Festival every year in downtown San Jose. Admission is free. This year's festival is July 4, 5 and 6 from 10 a.m. until dusk.

For more information, call Tapestry In Talent Inc., 293-9727.

An Affair to Remember with BEA RENÉ

If they handed out medals for fighting inflation, Lou Torres would have a chestful. Lou's fashionable PRIME RIB INN has long been regarded as one dining place that really gives top value for the dollar. Take the daily luncheon specials for example. They're still priced from $3.50. And if that price is impressive, just check what you get for the money: Homemade soup or luscious green salad for a starter course. Then, on to the main course. Fresh red snapper is featured every day, plus other luncheon specials such as sirloin tips, meat loaf, beef bourguignonne, and baked pork chops. It's good to know that at PRIME RIB INN, low prices are still in style!

GARDEN CITY'S suave Mgr., Henry Schiro continues to provide the Peninsula with a fine entertainment lineup . . . the June Music Series includes KHARYN LEIGH & PAUL PONG from 5-8 p.m., except Wednesdays when TIFFANY STRINGS perform. SMITH DOBSON (Piano/Vocals) & JOHN NICHOLS (Bassist & Guitarist) perform Mon. & Tues. 8-12 p.m. MARTAN MANN & BUD DIMOCK, the well-known regulars, perform Wed.-Sun. 8-12 p.m. Don't forget every Sun. night there's a jam session at 9 p.m. w/MARTY & BUD & Percussionist KENT BRYSON. Stop by for dinner & linger on for some fine entertainment.

Chef Eduardo is back cooking his great gourmet seafood recipes at his FISHERMAN'S VILLAGE restaurant in Cupertino . . . his cuisine has an Italian flavor & it's simply delightful. Early Bird dinners are only $4.95 good daily 4-6 p.m. & Happy Hour is 4-6 Mon.-Fri. (all well drinks only 75¢). For entertainment, pretty "Yuki" is back at the piano. So stop by for an evening of fine dining & entertainment soon.

The ESTRELLITA Restaurant deserves 4 stars for its fine service & excellent cuisine . . . incidentally, as you may or may not know, the definition of ESTRELLITA is "The Little Star" — rightly named. Try Mrs. Corlay's Chimichanga, Flautas, and a great gourmet Burrito. She also serves meatless combinations if you prefer. For dessert the delicious deep fried pastry with hot syrup is available — sopaipillas. Visit soon.

If you're planning a private party or banquet soon do call Mgr. Stanley Ho at RUBY KING. He can describe their lovely upstairs party room which can accommodate parties up to 450. The lg. party room features a raised bandstand, dance floor, & a horseshoe bar. Incidentally, if you're looking for a great Sat. lunch spot, RUBY KING'S is the place for you. They serve lunch 7 days a week & feature that great Chinese delicacy, Dim Sum. These little dumplings are filled w/various meats, seafoods & sweet fillings — extremely popular.

Vicky & Mike Vargas continue to serve the same fine old fashioned Italian dinners at PALO ALTO JOE'S . . . this family restaurant has become very popular since its introduction to the area about 3 yrs. ago although they have been in the restaurant business for over 26 yrs. in S.F. You may have visited West Portal Joe's? If so, you will know that PALO ALTO JOE'S carries on the fine tradition of excellent cuisine & they have developed a fine following of diners & kept them satisfied for yrs. Happy Hour is 4-6 p.m. Mon.-Fri. w/delicious hors d'oeuvres — enjoy the sporting events on the wide TV screen in the lounge.

When dining at CHEF CHU'S your waiter will no doubt suggest a glass of plum wine (served w/a twist & icy cold). This is a fine compliment to the excellent Mandarin cuisine prepared at this tried & true restaurant. CHEF CHU's is over 10 yrs. old — 10 yrs. of success. If you would enjoy learning how to prepare excellent Chinese cuisine remember CHEF CHU features cooking classes. Call 948-2696 for more information. CHEF CHU'S is located at the corner of El Camino & San Antonio Rd., Los Altos — do visit soon.

For a very enjoyable evening, stop by the ECHO to enjoy Jim Murphy on the piano/organ & Clay Landrum on the banjo — they entertain in the lounge for your listening & dancing pleasure. One incentive, of course, is John Bikakis' excellent $3.95 dinner specs. served thruout the dinner hour til closing which feature N.Y. Steak w/mushrooms, Fried Chicken, Veal Cutlet, Chicken Livers & Filet of Sole. Prime Rib & many fish & meat dishes are also available.

I always enjoy a lounge/restaurant that is frequented by noted sportsmen — somehow this seems to imply that this restaurant is really the "in" place to go. In other words, if the fellas like the restaurant you know the food & hospitality has to be good. Such is the case of JAN'S VALLEY INN in Portola Valley. There's always plenty of 49er's & other weekend horsemen, etc., enjoying their friendly bar — generally they linger on for a marvelous dinner. JAN'S features Continental cuisine in a country atmosphere — this combination simply can't be beat. Sun. Champagne Brunch is served from 10-2 p.m. also.

I think SIRLOIN & BREW UNLIMITED features a good idea . . . every table has a postage paid comment card so it's easy to tell them whether you're happy or unhappy. Every dinner is guaranteed so if you take a couple bites of any dinner & are not satisfied for any reason ask them to cook a replacement & they will. Best of all dining at SIRLOIN & BREW UNLIMITED offers a relaxed candlelit opportunity to wind down from the cares of the day & "live lavishly" tonite for less than $5. Don't forget complimentary bottles of burgundy or chablis wine or pitchers of cold beer or sangria are incl.

Haven't you noticed that with this diet conscious society seafood is definitely the "in food" to order. It's not only healthy & delicious, it's simply a treat to enjoy fr. fish when it's in season. At the FISH MARKET restaurant you can be assured of all of these attributes & the fish is grilled over a Mesquite Wood Charcoal stove to perfection. Everything is fileted & deboned & you may also order fr. fish in their retail market in the foyer to take home. The Santa Clara FISH MARKET offers an Oyster Bar & full cocktail bar. Both restaurants are open 7 days serving lunch & dinner w/blackboard spec. daily.

The ladies are treated royally at the 94TH AERO SQUADRON — every Wed. is Ladies Nite & single gals only pay 90¢ for cocktails — I'm told this place is filled w/attractive gals who stop by after a hard day's work. Tues. is Nuts & Bolts Nite & Thurs. is Twilight Happy Hour w/easy listening mellow jazz from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Also on Thurs., is Beat the Clock Nite w/drink prices starting low & increasing as the evening progresses. I've attended one of these & the fast drinkers are the ones who come out w/more money in their pocket. Don't forget the 94TH serves a marvelous Sun. Champagne brunch from 10-3 p.m.

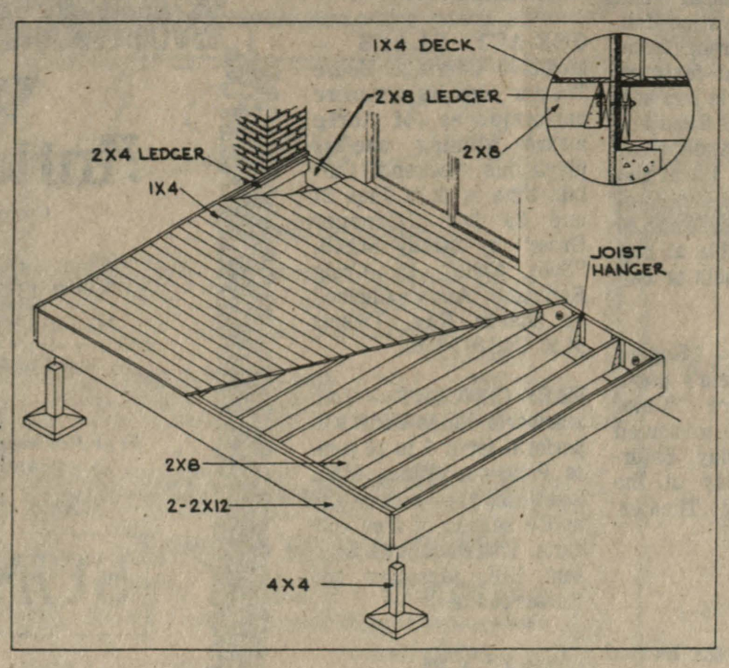
An economy deck: lots of area for little money

Reprinted from Kitchen and Bath Ideas, Fall/Winter 1979 © Copyright Meredith Corp. 1979



There's nothing very fancy about this streamlined deck, yet it adds a special appeal to an otherwise ho-hum backyard. But more than that, it's also one of the easiest and most economical decks you could hope for.

The low-slung on-grade profile makes this deck a comfortable transition between home and yard. And the chipped bark edging provides an interesting contrast—both in texture and color—with the house and plantings.

1 Select your site carefully and check your plans by laying out the deck first. See pages 45-48 for complete instructions.
2 Dig holes for pouring footings, or set posts in concrete (see page 49).
3 Bolt or nail outside 2x12 joists and front header to the posts, and bolt 2x8 ledger to the house (see cutout in the sketch for details). NOTE: Use redwood, cedar, or pressure-treated wood for members touching the ground.
4 Install joist hangers 12 inches on center to receive the 2x8 joists (see sketch). Nail 2x4 ledgers in place on the outside joists, as illustrated in sketch above.
5 Install the 2x8 joists.
6 Lay 1x4 decking (see page 54).
7 Stain the unit, or apply a transparent preservative.
8 Add edging, potted plants, and other deck accessories as desired.

A busy center island for your kitchen

When this family planned their new kitchen, the food preparation island was the last piece to fall into place. But even though that decision was more or less an afterthought, Bill and Judy now regard their island as the top feature in their kitchen.

The 5x5-foot centrally located island, shown at left is the hub of activities for this couple and their two daughters. While the children help Mom prepare cookies on one side of the island, the other side remains free for cleanup.

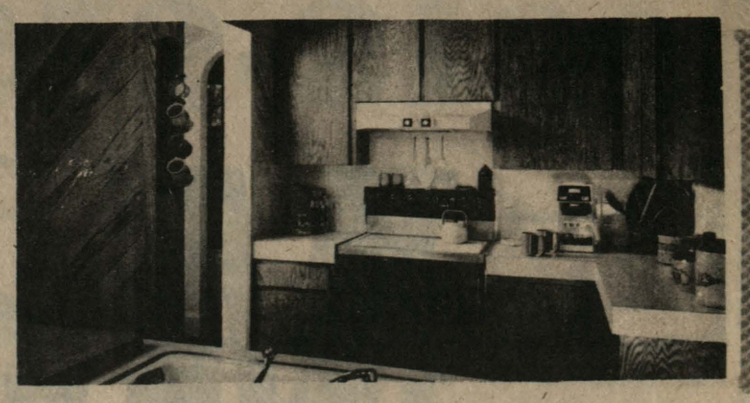
Besides adding extra counter space, the island is large enough to house a built-in dishwasher. There are no wasted steps in getting dirty dishes from the sink to the dishwasher.

To dramatize the island, a section of the ceiling was dropped to make room for four recessed spotlights. The spotlights provide strong glare- and shadow-free illumination.

The light box blends in perfectly with the rest of the kitchen. Prefinished ¼-inch tongue-and-groove white ash was applied diagonally on the box itself and on interior wall surfaces. Ash was also selected for the cabinet fronts which, like the paneling, have been finished to bring out the grain.

Installing the center island caused a major shift in traffic patterns in the kitchen. Before the island appeared on the scene, meal preparation was a constant struggle for space between the cook, the kids, and the dogs. Now, cooking is a breeze for Judy—and she has enough elbowroom to enjoy the work. Even apprentice cooks can have a work station to call their own.

A center island alone—without sound planning—would not have increased this kitchen's efficiency. That isn't the case here because Bill and



Judy decided to make the island one leg of a work triangle.

Santa Clara Valley REALTOR'S REVIEW

The resale market in San Jose has accelerated, due mainly to the recent drop in home mortgage rates, according to the San Jose Real Estate Board.

Sales were up 49 percent from April to May. There were 1313 sales in May compared to 883 sales in April.

The median and average cost of housing continue to rise. The average price of a single family home was $113,328 in May; the median was $97,500. In April, the average figure was $112,074 and the median $95,000.

"The drop in mortgage rates has created an opportunity for more people to qualify for home loans," said board president John Miner.

Rates four to six weeks ago were as high as 17 and 18 percent for conventional loans. As of June 6, many banks and savings and loans were quoting 12¾ to 13 percent. FHA and VA rates, which were as high as 14½ percent, are now at 11½ percent.

A voter registration drive is still going strong. Members of the Palo Alto, Mountain View, Sunnyvale, Los Gatos-Saratoga and San Jose boards have a supply of postage-free mail-in voter registration cards.

The deadline to register to vote in the general election is in October. Those who should register to vote include citizens over 18 years who have never registered, those who have changed addresses since the last election, those who didn't vote in the last major election and those changing political party affiliation.

A pilot program that offers the Graduate Realtor's Institute course in five one-day segments instead of in one five-day session has been authorized by the California Association of Realtors, according to Carole Lushbaugh, chairman of the C.A.R. Realtors Institute Division. She is a member of the Los Gatos-Saratoga Board of Realtors.

A questionnaire is now being circulated to determine a board which would like to be the authorized board for the pilot program.
